The day was observed with a series of activities and a popular talk. The celebration of this significant day started with the plantation drive in the college premises where a no of students took part along with the presence of the Principal, teaching and nonteaching staff. This was followed by a cleanliness drive carried out by the faculty members and the students as well. In line with the celebration of this day, a popular talk on “Land – a Critical intersection of economic & ecological system” was held in conference Hall-II of the college.

The resource person for the talk was Dr. Bornali Borah, Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, Gauhati University. The event convened by Dr. Upasana Chakravarty, HoD, Economics and was inaugurated by the Principal Dr. Hrishikesh Baruah, where he addressed the issue of degrading land quality and the ever increasing pressure of mass as there is an increasing trend of urban population occupied on a meagre portion of urban land. The welcome address was followed by an absorbing lecture by Dr. Bornali Borah. She addressed the issue of increasing of land use and the deterioration of the land. Since land is a limited resource which cannot be expanded, she emphasized on the sustainable land management in line with the sustainable development goals. The resource person also emphasized on the sustainable agricultural practices that would meet the needs of the people without hampering the quality of land. During a brief interactive session, some of the participants put forward their queries which were answered by the Resource Person. The event ended with vote of Thanks offered by Mr. Sumit Ghosh, Assistant Professor, Department of economics
